However, Myers' statement pointed up the possibility that the administration will drop its anti-filibuster drive if it can't win in the next few days.

The admnistration's hopes are pinned heavily on an expected ruling by Vice President Barkley that a two-thirds vote can gag senate debate at any time. Senator Lucas of Illinois, the Democratic leader, all but said outright that if this move fails, there is no hope now for early enactment of President Truman's civil rights program.

Such a move would cast out possible fear that the city would fail—after separation—to reduce its taxes in proportion to the load it would lose through divorcement.

Meanwhile, school board members are planning additional talks before community groups to ex-

Danish membership in the alliance is considered highly important. This is so not only because of Denmark's location in Western Europe, but also because that country holds the island of Greenland with its strategic bases guarding North Atlantic Sea and air routes.

The American government has been anxious to retain the bases which military strategists consider essential to the defense of the Western Hemisphere. Under the new strategy of joint North American-Western European defense the bases gain additional importance because of the need to keep open oceanic transportation routes between the two continents.

Mrs. Nell Castles, Miss Elsie Houston and Miss Julia Stewart were named to a nominating committee to prepare two slates of officers for presentation at an April meeting.

The finance committee also announced a rummage sale for April 9th. Further arrangements are to be publicized later.

Another committee currently working out a civic project is headed by Miss Lena Rose Harvin, who is directing cooperation with the Corsicana Community Council on a school census survey.

The meeting marked the dismissal of the clubhouse committee which made its final report to the general body. Miss Adlyn Hays has served as chairman.

Dinner was served in the Autry-Kelley room at foursome tables, laid in passel cloths and centered with springtime arrangements of jonquils.

Once again simple faith had won a great prize.

No Ear for Discouragement.
Then, as the multitude marveled, came messengers from the home of Jarius saying, "Your daughter is dead; why trouble the Rabbi further?" With words of assurance on his lips—"Do not be afraid, only have faith"—Jesus, with the distraught father and three of His disciples, hurried to the house now a scene of oriental grief and clamor. Driving out the noisy neighbors, Jesus took with Him into the death chamber the father, the mother, and the three disciples. into the death chamber the father, the mother, and the three disciples. Then, in a strange simplicity, he clasped the cold, still hand of the daughter in His own, and said—as the Weymouth Version has it—"Talitha, koum; that is to say, Little girl, I command you to awake."

"Talitha, koum; that is to say,
Thittle girl, I command you to
'awake'."

Thereupon, the child arose naturally, as from a sleep, and began to walk and talk—raised from the dead! He who had shown His power over wind and wave now demonstrated His authority over death and the grave. For the first time, but not for the last, Jesus raised the dead—a final proof of His divine nature.

A Bewildered Saint.

The firsta incident in the lesson pictures a little girl, dead and raised by divine power. The second gives us the picture of a man, prematurely old, lying in prison, facing death, his spirit being gradually worn down by disappointment and bewilderment. This man was John the Baptist, who, the first time he laid eyes upon Jesus, proclaimed Him the Messiah. Now he was not so sure that his first estimate of this kinsman of his, this Teacher from Nazareth, was correct. He had looked for a Messiah who with an ax in hand would hew his way through the world's evil and injustice. Instead, stories were reaching him that this Jesus was reaching him that this Jesus was content to preach and teach, and worst of all to turn from His great work of reformation to heal begand little children and a whole gars and little children and a whole crowd of inconsequential people. John asked himself if he could have been mistaken in his appraisal of this man. So he sent messengers to find out the truth—to ask Jesus if He really was the one to come, or were they to look for another.

Jesus answered not with words, but with acts. He kept right on with His healing ministry and then instructed the emissaries of John to return to their friend and tell him what they had seen. Are not

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Field Candidates

Holding Workouts

A track squad of 28 candidates is currently working out at Corsicana high school under the tutelage of Coach Garlana Matthews in preparation for the District 9-AA meet in Waco on April 9.

To add to the present state of affairs, two of the most promising candidates have been lost for this season because of operations. Kenneth Bailey, broad jumper, and Bill Ferguson, miler, have undergone
